POETICAL.

TRIP LIGHTLY.

Trip lightly over trouble,
Trip lightly over wrong,
We only make grief double
By dwelling on it long.
Why clasp woe's hands so tightly?
Why sigh o'er blossoms dead?
Why clings to forms unsightly?
Why not seek joy instead?

Trip lightly over sorrow,
Though all the days be dark,
The sun may shine to-morrow,
And gaily sing the lark;
Fair hopes have not departed,
Though roses may have fled,
Then never be down-hearted,
But look for joy instead.

Trip lightly over sadness,
Stand not to rail at doom,
We've pearls to string, of gladness,
On this side of the tomb.
Whilst stars are nightly shining,
And heaven is over head,
Encourage not repining,
But look for joy instead.

INFLUENCE.

Drop follows drop, and swells
With rain the sweeping river;
Word follows word, and tells
A truth that lives forever.

Flake follows flake like sprites,
Whose wings the winds dissever;
Thought follows thought, and lights
The realm of mind forever.

Beam follows beam to cheer
The cloud a belt would shiver,
Throbs follows throb, and fear
Gives place to joy forever.

The drop,—the flake, the beam
Teach us a lesson ever.
The word, the thought, the dream
Impress the soul forever.

Miscellaneous.

Social Evils.

We extract from the Atlantic Monthly the following paragraphs. The strictures of the writer are none too severe:

What a glaring inconsistency is there manifested in the toleration at one time of a posture which under any other circumstances, would blast a reputation! No pure woman would suffer a man to rejoice her heart in his much less to encircle her with his arm, in the ordinary relations of social life, and yet, at the bidding of fashion, and because the additional stimulus of music is superadded, she will not only permit these liberties, but will remain willingly strained to his breast for a quarter of an hour at a time, publicly exhibiting herself in a position which in itself she virtually condemns. Favors which would properly be denied to the most favorable of her acquaintances off the dancing floor are there accorded freely even to notorious libertines, for no guarantee is required from those to whom fashion intrusts the persons of her female devotees, further than proficiency in an art chiefly acquired by young men thro' association with the most degraded of the other sex—all mental or moral disqualifications being condoned by the single merit of dancing well.

Many a young girl who intuitively shrinks from the endearments innocently proffered by her affianced lover, unthinkingly subjects herself to the contaminating embrace and irreverate comment of debauching witlings, whose every thought is a concealed insult. Not that we would imply a sweeping censure upon the male portion of the community; for many—perhaps most—are gentlemen; and, as such, incapable of harboring an idea repugnant to female purity.

But in so composite a society as ours some evil characters are inevitably introduced, and even of those whose antecedents and position should vouch for their refinement, there are many whose coarse tastes and dissipated courses render their contact with virtuous women almost a sacrilege.

CLOSE PREACHING.—The following illustration of some revivals of religion and the piety of some people, as given several years ago by a colored preacher in Montgomery, Ala., is forcible and instructive. Alas! it be so?—"Bymeby 'vival's gone—an dare dey lie till 'nother 'vival."

"My bredren," said he, "God bless your souls, 'ligion is like de Alabama river! In spring come fresh, an' bring in all de ole logs, stabs an' sticks, dat hab been lyin' on be bank, an' carry dem down in de current. Bymeby de water go down—den a log cotch here on dis island, den a slab gets cotched on de shore, an' de sticks on de bushes—and dere dey lie, withrin' an' dryin' till come 'nother fresh. Jus' so dare come 'vival of 'ligion—dis ole sinner brought in, dat ole backslider brought back, an' de old folks seem comin', an' mighty good times. But, bredren, God bless your souls; bymeby 'vival's gone—den dis ole sinner is stuck on his own sin, den dat ole backslider is cotched where he was afore, on jus' such a rock; den one after 'nother dat had got 'ligion lies all along de shore, an' dere dey lie till 'nober 'vival. Belubed bredren, God bless your souls, keep in de current."

Courtship as It Should Be.

Choosing a wife is no such puzzling enigma as it used to be, before the lights of modern science shone across the nineteenth century of ours. If you marry an angel, and discover afterward that she is something very far removed from the supernal, you have only yourself to thank for it.—You may have read the dormant existence of these very repellant traits of character that broke upon you like thunderbolts in conformation of the pretty head, the shape of the polished forehead, the curve of the stately neck. You might have seen the flash of temper in her eyes, the acerbity of her close lips, the iron will of her square chin. Nature inscribes her nature plainly enough in face and brain, and if you do not take the trouble to read the signs and tokens, why you have only to make the best of the bargain.

Nor do we believe in long courtships. Jacob must have been a very remarkable individual not to have got heartily tired of Miss Rachel long before these fourteen years ordeal had transpired; and we have no proofs that Rachel was not waning into a confirmed old maid while Jacob was earning her. Don't wait to make your fortune, young lover! If you are not rich in money, you have stores of strength and youth, and warm, fresh love; and with these gone, you would be poor indeed, though you revelled in the wealth of John Jacob Astor.—A man never falls in love but once.—He has fancies, likings, friendships based upon genuine esteem, but the celestial flame comes once only in a lifetime. Therefore, if you love a woman, and she is worthy of your affection, marry her, and trust to God, and your own strong right arm to bring the world to recognize the wisdom of your choice.

As for all the current nonsense on the subject of "selecting a wife," our shrewd opinion is that it is only nonsense. Fancy a young gentleman prying into his inamorata's house before breakfast to ascertain whether or not her collar was pinned correctly, or her hair brushed geometrically straight. Picture him descending upon her at all sorts of certain and uncertain hours to find out whether she made bread or played the piano, and if there was any dust on her center-table. If he has not judgment enough to make his selection without any such extraneous aids, we opine that his intellect can scarcely be of the very highest order.

Yet there are some keen disappointments in this business of matrimonial choice. A man's girl under a sort of transitory enchantment, is very apt, when the honey-moon is over, to discover that she is only mortal after all, and consider himself rather in the light of a wronged individual. The pretty girl too, begins to see that her lover is neither more nor less than a man; it is possible that she has moments of grave reflection on the subject. Thus it requires a considerable amount of philosophy to survive the first months of matrimony without what are called "lover's quarrels." Yet there is love strong enough and broad enough and deep enough to bear up all imperfections and shortcomings on its resistless current. Now and then we chance on a marriage based on just such love as this, a union whose links brighten as the years go on, and are cemented even more strongly in the world "where there is neither marriage nor given in marriage."

While there are summer and winter, seedtime and harvest, there will be a perpetual repetition of the sweet old story of love and courtship. It is as it should be. Let there be no false modesty, no misplaced hesitation on the subject. God meant his children to be happy in the spring time of their lives; shall we hide away the good gifts of love and appreciation which He has given us?—Phrenological Journal.

The Great Mystery.

The body is to die. No one who passes the charmed boundary comes back to tell. The imagination visits the realms of shadows—set out from some window in the soul over life's restless waters, but brings its way wearily back without a live leaf in its beak, as a token of emerging life, beyond the closely pending horizon.—The great sun comes and goes in the heaven, yet breathes no secret of the ethereal wilderness. The crescent moon cleaves her nightly passage across the upper deep, but tosses overboard no signals. The sentinel stars challenge each other as they walk their nightly rounds, but we catch no syllable of their countersign, which gives passage to the heavenly camp. Between this and the life there is a great gulf fixed, across which neither feet nor eye can travel. The gentle friend whose eyes we closed in their last sleep long years ago, died with rapture in her wonder stricken eyes, a smile of ineffable joy upon her lips, and hands folded over a triumphant heart, but her lips were past speech and intimated nothing of the vision that enthralled her.—J. G. Holland.

"MARY," said a wise and witty old lady, the other day, to her grand daughter, "What do you call the ugly bunch that hangs down behind your head?" "Why, grandmother, everybody knows it is a waterfall." "A waterfall, indeed!" replied the old lady, "it looks for all the world like a land slide."

A Moment of Horror.

For twenty-three years, old Jake Williard has cultivated the soil of Baldwin county, and drawn therefrom support for himself and wife.—He is childless. Not long since Jake went in search of a cow. His course was through an old worn out patch of clay land, of about six acres in extent, in the centre of which was a well twenty-five or thirty feet deep, that at some time, probably, had served the inmates of a dilapidated house near by with water. In passing by this spot, an ill wind drifted Jake's "tile" from his head, and maliciously wafted it to the edge of the well, and in it tumbled.

Now, the old gentleman had always practiced the virtue of economy, and he immediately set about recovering the lost hat. He ran to the well, and finding it was dry at the bottom, he uncoiled the rope which he had brought for capturing the truant cow, and after several attempts to catch the hat with a noose, he concluded to save time by getting down into the well himself. To accomplish this he made fast one end of the rope to a stump hard by, and was soon on his way down the well. It was a fact, of which Jake was no less obvious than the reader hereof, that Ned Willis was in the dilapidated old building aforesaid, and that an old blind horse, with a bell on his neck, who had been turned out to die, was lazily grazing within a short distance of the well. The devil himself, or some other wicked spirit, put it into Ned's cranium to have a little fun; so he quietly slipped up to the old horse, and unbuckling the strap approached with a slow and steady "ting-a-ling" to the edge of the well.

"Dang the old blind horse!" said the man at the bottom of the well; "he's coming this way sure, and aint got any more sense than to fall in here. Whoa, Bill!"

But the continued approach of a "ting a-ling" said just as plainly as words that Bill would'nt whoa. Besides, Jake was at the bottom, resting before trying to skin it up the rope.

"Great Jerusalem!" said he, "the old cuss will be a top of me before I can say Jack Robinson. Whoa, dang it. Whoa!

Just then ned drew up to the edge of well, and with his foot kicked a little dirt into it.

"Oh, Lord!" exclaimed Jake, falling on his knees at the bottom, "I'm gone now—whoa! Now I lay me down to sleep—w-h-o-a! I pray the Lord my soul to—whoa! Oh, Lord

Ned could hold in no longer, and fearing Jake might suffer from his fright, he revealed himself. Probably Ned did'nt make tracks from that well. Maybe Jake wasn't up to the top of it in short order, and you might think he didn't try every night for two weeks to get a shot with his rifle at Ned. Maybe not, I don't know. But I do know that if Jake finds out who sent this, it will be the last squib you'll get.

The Aristocracy of Crime.

A Boston correspondent says shoddy and petroleum now hide their heads before the surpassing luxuriance of the bogus growth of wealth obtained from burglary—burglary confessed, gloried in unpunished, and lavishly rewarded. We have in our vicinity two members of this class of wealthy men. One is Charley Adams, the robber of the Concord Bank, who after all the hubbub made over his detection, has settled down for life with an independent fortune, on the snug farm which he made the base of his operations against the bank, and drives a splendid span, with the bride whom his successful speculation has enabled him to marry within a month past, envied by all her poor and honest neighbors. The other is Horace Annis, the hero of the still bolder operation, which carried a million and a half of money in broad daylight from the counting room of a purblind New York broker, and who has been here within the week, brazen in the security from arrest, which was one of the terms of his bargain, and boasting to the admiring detectives and sporting men who are his familiars, of the cool hundred thousand which he carries in his pocket as the result of his speculation.

HOW A LADY SHOULD SIT ON A HORSE.—A lady's horse, to be perfect, should be all over handsome, and well upon its haunches. If slightly hollow in the back, so much the better, for it generally tends to ease in action, and to less motion to the saddle. A lady should never be heard upon the saddle—that is there should be no bumping noise, not even in a trot. She should sit so closely, and, when rising to the trot, possess such elastic motion from the foot to the knee and waist, that her return to the saddle should seem as light as a feather. She should so sit "square to the front," and her horse's ears (to speak as a soldier) ought to dress well with the buttons on the bosom of her habit. Nothing is so bad as to sit with a lean to one side, and, when admirers are following after, to let them fear that a very little would cast her off from the stirrup side of her saddle. Her hands should be down, but light, and her arm as well as every inclination of her figure, should harmonize with the motions of her steed, as if both possessed the same volition.—Grantley Berkeley

Remarkable History of a Torpedo Boat

Gen. Maury's report of the defence of Mobile narrates the eventful history of a torpedo boat as follows:

It was built of iron, was about thirty-five feet long, and was manned by a crew of nine men, eight of whom worked the propellor by hand. The ninth steered the boat and regulated her movements below the surface of the water. She could be submerged at pleasure to any desired depth, or could be propelled upon the surface. In smooth, still water her movements were exactly controlled, and her speed was about four knots. It was intended that she should approach a vessel lying at anchor, pass under her keel, and drag a floating torpedo, which would explode on striking the side or bottom of the ship attacked.

She could remain submerged more than half an hour without inconvenience to her crew.

Soon after her arrival in Charleston, Lieut. Payne, of the Confederate Navy, with eight others, volunteered to attack the Federal fleet with her. While preparing for their expedition, the swell of a passing steamer caused the boat to sink suddenly, and all hands, except Lieut. Payne, who at the moment was standing at the open hatchway, perished. She was soon raised and again made ready for service.—Lieut. Payne again volunteered to command her. While lying near Fort Sumter she capsized and again sunk in deep water, drowning all hands except her commander and two others.

Being again raised and prepared for action, Mr. Aunley, one of the constructors, made an experimental cruise in her in Cooper river. While submerged at great depth, from some unknown cause, she became unmanageable and remained for many days on the bottom of the river with her crew of nine dead men.

The fourth time was the boat raised, and Lieut. Dixon, of Mobile, of the twenty-first volunteers, with eight others, went out of Charleston harbor in her and attacked and sunk the Federal steamer Housatonic.

Her mission at last accomplished, she disappeared forever with her crew. Nothing is known of their fate, but it is believed they went down with the enemy.

It is a serious evil, that many a young man has fallen into to be above his business. A person learns a trade, and then he must go to shop-keeping, Four hundred or turn politician.—his trade, we are sure he can not be other way. And then young men brought up to shop-keeping must buy farms, or houses, or some other foolish things they know nothing about, and what is the result? Head over heels in debt and certain failure.—Multitudes have been ruined by being above their business and branching out into what they know nothing about.

There is no trouble about young men who don't fell their importance, and are willing to work at their trades or profession till they get a little beforehand. With a small capital to fall back upon, they can feel like venturing into other business—and by this time they will have formed habits that are likely to keep them straight. Those who succeed best in life are men who stick to business and make money before they buy farms and houses and commence speculating.—Look at our successful men, and you will see where lies the secret of success.

You will find that they never were above their business, and never paid for the doing of a job which they could just as well do themselves. Of this we are sure: if all men will be prompt and punctual, stick to their business, and not be too proud, they will eventually succeed, and become independent.

A Fact Worth Printing.

At a second-class hotel in Frankfort, Ky., a few days since, a little girl entered the bar-room, and it pitiful tones, told the bar-keeper that her mother had sent her there to get eight cents.

"Eight cents?" said the bar-keeper.

"Yes, sir."

"What does your mother want of eight cents? I don't owe her anything."

"Well," said the child, "father spends all his money here for rum, and we have nothing to eat to-day. Mother wants to buy a loaf of bread."

A loafer suggested to the bar-keeper to kick the brat out

"No," said the bar-keeper, "I'll give her mother the money, and if her father comes back again, I'll kick him out." Such a circumstance never happened before, and may never happen again. Humanity owes that bar-keeper a vote of thanks.

Two of the greatest preachers in England have "taken the pledge," namely: Charles Spurgeon and Baptists Noel. This fact sounds queerly in temperate America.

It is proposed to establish three national cemeteries in Georgia for the proper interment of 30,000 Union soldiers buried in that State.

A MASSACHUSETTS inventor has procured a patent for a paper shirt which he can sell at twenty-five cents.

One of Buchanan's Secretaries.

Jacob Thompson, of Mississippi, lately a rebel agent in Canada, and as such concerned in the plot for the assassination of Mr. Lincoln, was in Palestine last winter. It is said that he had a letter of recommendation from the Pope, and an English passport. On the voyage from Naples to Alexandria, he found several Americans on board the steamer, who took delight in singing, "Down with the traitor, up with the star," "John Brown's body is mouldering in the ground," and songs of that sort.—He arrived at Jerusalem, and met with a favorable reception from the Latin Patriarch; but at his hotel he found himself in difficulties. He was told that the landlord did not care to risk the loss of all loyal American company by harboring him, and so he had nothing to do but to pack up and leave. Not only Americans, but English and French, respectfully declined the honor of his company. He turned with disgust to the Dead Sea; but no traveller can visit the Dead Sea without an escort obtained from the Pasha, through some Consul. The American Consul is a brave fellow, who lost his leg at Cold Harbor; but J. Thompson did not venture into his office. So he sought in vain for an escort, and was obliged to content himself with a view of the Dead Sea from the Mount of Olives. The Mosque of Omar, too, closed its gates against him for a similar reason, and he could only turn for consolation to his friend, the Latin Patriarch. It is to be hoped that he received from him such salutary moral lessons as would be adapted to his case. However this may be, he found it convenient to leave Jerusalem at once for a more congenial climate.

A Beautiful Idea.

In the mountains of Tyrol it is the custom of the women and children to come out when it is bedtime and sing their national songs until they hear their husbands, fathers, and brothers answer them from the hills on their return home. On the shores of the Adriatic such a custom prevails.—There the wives of the fishermen come down about sunset and sing a melody. After singing the first stanza they listen awhile for an answering melody from off the water, and continue to sing and listen till the well known voice comes borne on the waters telling that the loved one is almost home. How sweet to the weary fisherman, as the shadows gather around him, must be the songs of the loved ones at home that sing to cheer him, and how they must strengthen and tighten the dwellings by the sea-shore humble among the lowly in this life that we find some of the most beautiful customs in practice.

Cheer Your Pastor.

Has God given you as one of his flock an under-shepherd who is faithful to his charge, cheerful in poverty while you are growing rich, weeping in your sorrows and rejoicing in your joys? Does he share his morsel with the poor of his fold, carry the lambs in his arms, and lead all, loving and carefully, through the desert, under the guidance of the Chief Shepherd? Does he give up all earth for you and yours, making your good the aim of his life? Then leave him not comfortless; but by the word of sympathy and kind appreciation uphold his heart and strengthen his hands. Let him know that he is loved and honored for his own as well as for Jesus' sake. His position, to the careless observer, may seem a sinecure—light work and good wages; but to him who realizes his awful responsibility, standing as he does between the rejected Saviour and the imperilled sinner, he will appear as of all men the most in need of prayer and support.

Electioneering Tactics.

A distinguished candidate, who is "up to a thing or two," and has a keen appreciation of live beauty when about to set off on an electioneering tour recently, said to his wife, who was to accompany him for prudential reasons:

"My dear, inasmuch as this election is complicated, and the canvass will be close, I am anxious to leave nothing undone that would prompt my popularity and so I have thought it would be a good plan for me to kiss a number of the handsomest girls in every place where I may be honored with a public reception. Don't you think it would be a capital idea."

"Capital," exclaimed the fond wife, and to make your election a sure thing while you are kissing the handsomest girls, I will kiss an equal number of the handsomest young men."

The distinguished candidate, we believe, has not since referred to his pleasing means of popularity.

A MAN recently broke off an engagement because the lady did not possess good conversational powers. A hen-pecked editor commenting upon the fact, says, "He should have married her and then refused her a new bonnet to have developed her powers of talk."

Religious Intelligence.

During the recent revival at Newark, N. J., a man who had been attending Court as a juror, was awakened by the Spirit of God to seek repentance for his sins. He stated that while sitting in the jury box hour after hour, trying those charged with crime, weighing the evidence, listening to the appeals of lawyers, deciding on a verdict, and hearing the sentence pronounced by the judge, the solemn scenes of the judgment came flashing upon his mind. He thought of the hour when he would stand before the bar of God. Immediately after the adjournment of the Court he returned home in great distress of mind, sought forgiveness and was mercifully pardoned of all his sins.

An association has been founded in Paris with the object of undertaking a new translation of the Holy Scriptures. It is to be the work of competent persons taken from the three great religious communities—Catholic, Protestant, and Jewish. M. Amedee Thierry, Senator, and member of the French Academy, is the President. At the first meeting held last month, the President remarked that it was a source of satisfaction to behold the three great forms of worship assembled to promote the object they all had at heart, and that there was a neutral ground on which they could meet, namely, that of philology and literature.

A clergyman writes to the Independent complaining that there are over seventy vacant pulpits in Connecticut alone, the reason being that there is so great a decline of religious interest that congregations cannot be induced to contribute enough for the support of pastors.

Farm, House, &c.

RAISE HEIFER CALVES.—In ordinary stock growing, what has been more profitable recently than raising cows, if not for use on the farm, then for sale, to the dairymen? And, compared with other parts of stock growing, this relative profit is likely to continue for some years to come. The first year the cost of keeping the calf is small, and after the second, the cow will pay her own way, and give a profit besides, if not sold. Farmers in fruit and grain-growing sections, desirous of raising a few cattle yearly for sale, will find the heifer calves the most profitable.

EATING STRAWBERRIES.—Throughout Sicily it is the custom to eat strawberries along with sugar and the juice of an orange or two. The strawberries, a small kind, come to the table without their stalks, are crushed with white powdered sugar, and the juice of an orange is squeezed over them. The result is a fragrant and agreeable compound, much superior, in my opinion, to strawberries and cream. Indeed, I think it is almost worth while to make a journey to Sicily to be initiated into this mode of eating strawberries. — Gardener's Chronicle.

FATTENING CATTLE.—It is the common practice at the west, and probably elsewhere, to feed whole corn to cattle when up for fattening. Where there is a superabundance of corn, this method of feeding may not be of much consequence, though the practice is a wasteful one. Corn meal is much preferable, as it saves the labor of the animal in grinding its own food. An ox will fatten a quarter faster on meal than on corn, while a less amount will be used in the process.

MANURING LAWNS.—Failing in rich compost, or thoroughly decayed dung, sow Peruvian guano over the lawn, during showery weather in the spring, at the rate of two cwt. per acre, and give another dressing in the first wet weather in June, applying it just before rain. Let the guano be sifted through a moderately fine sieve. Peruvian guano is best, but the ammoniated guano is excellent.

SCOURING IN SHEEP.—To prevent sheep from scouring when first turned to grass in the spring, give them no salt from the time they are turned out until after shearing; or, what we think is much better, let them have access to salt at all times, summer and winter. Either plan will produce the desired effect.

MAY 16th, 1866.

FOR GOVERNOR,

GEN. JOHN W. GEARY,

OF CUMBERLAND COUNTY.

CONGRESS last week repealed the tax on crude oil, to take effect immediately. This action of Congress has given a new stimulus to producers and those engaged in developing oil territory. The tax of one dollar per barrel was oppressive, and in many cases ruinous. A well producing ten barrels per day which requires to be pumped would not pay expenses and the tax at the present low price of oil. At present prices, the tax amounted to twenty-five per cent., sufficient almost to ruin any business. While we believed the tax too heavy, we certainly did not expect Congress would relieve it altogether. It seems to us that it would have been better to have reduced the tax to about five per cent., and not repeal absolutely. So long as it is necessary to raise revenue for the Government by taxation, Congress ought to impose the tax upon everything that can bear it, and especially to impose it where it will be the least burdensome. If any class of men can afford to pay tax, certainly oil producers can. There is no business more profitable. Men engage in it to make money, and if at all successful, they do make money rapidly. If a man or a company of men own a well producing from thirty to one thousand barrels of oil per day, a tax of five per cent. would not be felt, and would be paid cheerfully, because that man or that company would derive from the well an income large enough to justify the Government in asking, and he or them in paying. In that case, there would be no hardships, and no one could complain of the burden. The amount of income derived from the capital invested would be so large that a small tax would be paid cheerfully. The tax, we think, should have been reduced, but not repealed. Perhaps it should have been proportioned to the amount produced, so as to remove the objection that it prevented in some cases production. To tax small manufactures as they are now taxed, and in fact every branch of business, and remove the tax on crude oil altogether, was a mistake. The producer of oil pays his tax far more readily and easily than the manufacturer. Take, for instance, the shoe maker, who pays six per cent. upon the amount he manufactures, and compare his ability to pay, and the income derived from his business, with the owner of an oil well to be paid, and we are in favor of any trade, profession and business contributing in proportion to their ability, income and profit derived upon capital invested. If, as we are told, Congress will so revise the revenue law as to impose the tax only upon a few articles that can best bear taxation, and at the same time diffuse the burden the most equally and generally, we have no objections to their action in this instance. But if the law is to remain as it is, then we think the repeal was a mistake, and that a tax of five per cent upon oil where the well produces twenty or more barrels per day, should be imposed.

IN our article last week on the County Convention we were in error in stating that in some cases a nomination might be made by acclamation. A Union friend in whom we have great confidence, called upon us and pointed out the error, and we hasten to correct. Under the system adopted at the last Convention, there will be no meeting at which a nomination by acclamation could be made. It will be the duty of the several districts to organize by selecting a board of election officers to be composed, so far as possible, of the regular officers of the board of the districts, and vacancies to be supplied by elections. The officers having been selected, they will proceed to hold the election in the usual way, and determine who is the choice of the people, by the votes regularly polled. As there can be no meeting of the voters, they will have no power to nominate by acclamation, and the only safe way, in any case, will be to ballot for all, whether they have opposition or not, lest the charge should afterward be made that the nomination was not regular, and therefore not binding. It will be well for districts to see to it that the call is strictly complied with, as there may be trouble. Our object in giving this warning is to avoid trouble and dissatisfaction. Having adopted a rule we must abide by it.

THE Union party of Lawrence county will hold their primary meetings on Saturday, May 26th, and their county convention on the Monday following.

THE report of the Committee of Fifteen on Reconstruction was adopted in the House last week, and is now before the Senate. It is reported that a majority of the Congressmen were in favor of striking out the third section, disfranchising rebels for four years, but were compelled to vote for the whole report under the call of the previous questions, and that the Senate will strike out the section. If, as Blaine, a Republican Congressman, states this section was in direct conflict with the amnesty proclamation of President Lincoln and other official acts and proclamations of the Government, it should not be adopted. We have not examined with sufficient care to give an opinion as to how this is, but have no hesitation in saying that there should be no step taken that can be construed into an act of bad faith on the part of the Government. If citizens break faith with the Government, yet the Government must not break faith with any. To disfranchise certain leading rebels, would be a punishment to which none could reasonably object; but to pass a wholesale act would not be so popular. There are thousands who engaged in rebellion who are now acting in good faith toward the Government, and all such should be generously pardoned. No Government loses by manifesting a spirit of forgiveness. Punish the leaders, but forgive the masses. We are content, however, to abide by the decision of those who have this matter in charge.

THE TAX ON CRUDE PETROLEUM.—The immense taxation to which crude petroleum has been subjected, was of course the result of exaggerated statements concerning the fabulous profits of this production. This taxation was too heavy to enable the producers of oil to continue their operations, and the result was the almost entire depression of the business. Congress has been appealed to on this subject, but for a long time no disposition was manifested to reduce this tax. We see now that the House has passed an amendment to the tax bill, entirely exempting crude petroleum from taxation. This will operate to revive the work at many abandoned wells, and serve to stimulate the exertions of many oil operators who had almost given up the business in despair.

PROBST, the murderer of the Deering family, who has been sentenced to be hung on the 8th of June, has made a confession, from which it appears that he devised and committed the several murders alone and unaided, and that money was the only object and reason. The confession, like the deed, is a horrible evidence of depravity and utter want of feeling. There is not the slightest evidence of feeling or regret manifested, and when he received his sentence he was the most indifferent man in the court room. This man, who murdered eight persons, including his kind employer, his wife, neice, a hired boy, and four children, all young in years, and one an innocent babe, recites the narration, and at times breaks out into loud laughter over its details. It is wonderful to what fearful depths human nature will sink.

GEN. O. S. FERRY was nominated on the 9th inst. in a caucus of the Republican members of the Connecticut Legislature for the seat in the U. S. Senate which the Hon. Lafayette S. Foster now occupies. On the early ballots, Mr. Foster led both Governor Buckingham and General Ferry. On the seventh ballot Gov. Buckingham's name was withdrawn, and the vote stood, Ferry, 79; Foster, 46; Buckingham, 1. The nomination was subsequently made unanimous, and the election fixed for Wednesday, 16th inst.

WE are compelled to defer the publication of the able remarks of Hon. George V. Lawrence, our Representative in Congress, in reply to Randall, copperhead member from Philadelphia, until next week.

THE CROPS.—The Cleveland Herald says: The latest advices represent the wheat fields in Eastern Ohio, as in better condition than in any part of the country between this section and Michigan. There are some good fields in the central part of the State, but they are exceptions. In many places, as in Trumbull county, much of the wheat did not get sufficient start to enable it to withstand the cold. Some slight benefit from the late favorable weather is perceptible.

The Johnstown, Pennsylvania, Tribune says:—We have made considerable inquiry, and learn that the prospects of at least an average wheat crop in Cambria, Somerset and Blair counties is good. In Westmoreland the indications are not so favorable.

Head Centre Stephens in N. York.

NEW YORK, May 11.—Mr. Stephens, Head Centre of the Fenians, who arrived here yesterday, was met on his arrival by a committee of the Fenian Brotherhood, and by thousands of Irishmen who were anxiously waiting for his arrival. He proceeded from the wharf to the Metropolitan Hotel, followed by the crowd, where he will remain for the present. Mr. Stephens remained in his room conversing with the committee, and receiving the call of such friends as he choose to meet meet. In familiar conversation with the reporter of the press, Mr. Stephens gave a few hints of the objects of his mission, and confidently asserted that the Irish army would fight on their own soil ere the expiration of the present year.

We publish below the address of Hon. James R. Kelley, Speaker of the last House of Representatives, to that body at the close of the session. We mislaid the address at the time, and a friend sends it to us with a request to publish. It is eloquent and beautiful.

Gentlemen of the House of Representatives: The labors of the session are ended and the hour of separation has arrived. We have finished our work and it remains for the people who sent us here to pronounce judgment upon it. Let us hope that it will meet with their approval.

I promised you, gentlemen, when your kind partiality placed me in this position, that I would endeavor to discharge the duties faithfully, firmly and impartially, and I can say now, in all honesty and sincerity, that I have striven earnestly to keep that pledge to the very letter. If I have failed and fallen short, it was because my judgment was not equal to my inclination, determination and desire.

You have supported me—every one of you—with a generosity unparalleled. You have been indulgent with my errors, and I doubt they were many.—You have been forbearing with my faults and frailties, and I do not believe that in all the long line of presiding officers of this body any one of them has received more cordial kindness, more generous aid, sympathy and co-operation than him who now returns you his heartfelt thanks and gratitude before bidding you farewell.

I do not mean this in the ordinary acceptation of formal courtesy and stereotyped phrases of politeness.—My heart is overflowing with the recollections of your kindness which in this moment crowd upon me. Although younger by many years than any other member of this body, inexperienced and untutored in the science of administration, without any claim upon you, and less worthy by far than many, or any, of my associates, you chose me to preside over you, and throughout the entire session have treated me with constant kindness, forbearance and respect.

I part from you, gentlemen, with genuine sorrow and regret. Our association here has been very pleasant and the friendships formed during this session will, I trust, last throughout life. It is scarcely possible—certainly not probable—that we shall all meet in this world; yet, speaking for myself, and I trust and believe, uttering the feelings of all, I can say that the recollections of this pleasant and harmonious session, and its agreeable associations, will often rise in my breast as hallowed memories, and while life remains I shall not forget one of you. And, gentlemen, if we never meet again on earth, if duty and destiny separate our paths hereafter, let us endeavor to meet in that world where there are no partings—that happy haven of rest and calm.

"Where tempests never beat,
Nor billows roar."

I cannot close without alluding for a moment to our national affairs.—We have accomplished a great work—perhaps the greatest that history has ever chronicled, or ever will chronicle. A rebellion ever seen, has been crushed and subdued, and a free Government has proved its inherent power to overcome its greatest danger and severest trial, and to protect itself from every assault. Let us guard with a constant care and jealous watchfulness the results of the war for freedom and the rights of man, and let nothing be done or permitted that will, in the slightest degree, militate against the great principles for which we fought and suffered. Oh! let the blood dyed fields, the unburied slain, the desolate households, the sundered ties and broken family circles, the habiliments of mourning, the days of anxiety and nights of watching be ever before us. Not to stimulate blood thirsty hatred against the criminals, but to inspire us with constant horror of the crime, and to nerve our hands and strengthen our hearts to maintain always the great principle underlying this Government of the people, and for which we struggled and suffered through more than four years of darkness and blood.

The hands upon the dial plate warn me that I must close. Again returning you my sincere and heartfelt thanks and gratitude for the honor you conferred upon me in placing me in this position, and for the constant kindness, forbearance and respect with which you have always treated me, with a full heart I bid you Farewell, and pray earnestly that God will bless each one of you, keep you in His care, and enable you to perform whatever duties may devolve upon you in such a manner that when the final parting shall arrive no shadow of regret shall fall upon it.

The hour of twelve o'clock having arrived, in obedience to a joint resolution of this Legislature, I declare this House adjourned without day.

THE Constitutional Amendment which passed the House on Thursday was received in the Senate on Friday, and on motion of Mr. Fessenden was placed on the calendar for future discussion. When it comes up, Senator Stewart will offer his universal amnesty for universal suffrage, as a substitute for it.

There was an informal meeting of a good many Republican Senators and members on Friday, to see if some action would not be had in the Senate to strike out the third section of the amendment, which disfranchises rebels from voting for Federal officers. It is said there are a large number of members who will vote for it in the House if it can be brought back there.

ON Thursday Jefferson Davis was indicted for treason by the Grand Jury of the United States District Court, now in session at Norfolk, and the trial of the prisoner will take place, it is supposed, in June.

Declinations.

We are requested to state that Thos. Nicholson, Esq., is not a candidate for Assembly at this time.

We are requested to withdraw the name of A. J. Lawrence as a candidate for Auditor.

Editors Argus: Among the candidates mentioned for the office of State Senator, I know of none more deserving of success, or more eminently qualified for the position than the Hon. Benj. Rush Bradford, of New Brighton. If candidates are to be selected on account of fitness, and the presentation of claims upon the people, where, Messrs. Editors, is there a gentleman in the entire county who can command the attention of the people in this respect more than Mr. Bradford? During our terrible struggle for the perpetuity of our institutions, his influence was everywhere felt. The soldier, who suffered and bled upon the field of battle, cannot soon forget his sympathy, his substantial comforts, his pecuniary aid, distributed from his own private purse. Besides this, his munificent donations to the many charitable institutions that were established for the soldiers' and country's good, are facts so patent to the community that they need only be mentioned to call forth praise from every tongue. Mr. Bradford's great familiarity with the routine of legislative duties, together with his extensive acquaintance and popularity among the leading minds of the State, would be of great advantage to the interests of our county. There are many of his fellow-citizens who would be gratified to have his claims upon the favors of the county recognized in such a way as not only to redound to his honor, but also, we feel confident, to the honor and dignity of the county, by his nomination and election to the office of State Senator.

VERITAS.

Editors Argus: While many are soliciting the favor of their friends, I too present myself before the people as a candidate for Clerk of the Courts, and consider myself competent, or would not ask your support. I was a private soldier in the Union army, served in the 10th Pa. Reserves, till the battle of Fredericksburg, where I was severely wounded in the right breast, which renders me unfit for manual labor.

I now ask all true friends of the Union to do me justice. I will leave it to my friends, without canvassing. S. M. ELDER.

THE CABINET ORGAN, AND What It Is.

The grand old organ that has for centuries filled Church, Palace, and Cathedral with its colossal harmonies, is becoming daily more valued and appreciated by religious assemblies, and its almost universal introduction to the churches of our country has been prevented only by its great cost. This obstacle is now removed by the process of invention, improvement and perfection, as applied to the Melodeon and Harmonium, and we have the result in an instrument which, considering its bulk and cost, is

The CABINET ORGAN, perfected and patented by Mason & Hamlin, of Boston, has now been before the public but two years, and yet such are its unequaled qualities that it has found into church, school and family in all parts of our country. The Art Critic of the New York Tribune says of it in his department: It has been blown by the wind of genuine success from Boston to San Francisco. . . . That M. & H. have succeeded in making a better small instrument than any other—from little shoebox like things to those which, though portable, and not larger than a piano, can make themselves fill in a church—is the universal opinion of the musical profession. They defy that as mechanical works of the kind can be found in equal perfection in Europe. The tone is pure and full, and with an immense body for so small a provocative mechanical force. They stand rough travelling, bad usage, and will live in climates which kill American missionaries."

The Rev. Dr. PRIME, the well-known editor of the New York Observer, in his several correspondence, speaking of the insufficiency of the Melodeon to take the place of the Pipe Organ, says: "But the want is fully met by the Cabinet Organ. With your eyes shut you cannot distinguish its sound from that of the Pipe Organ itself. It is admirably adapted to the performance of sacred music, psalms, tunes, anthems, chants, &c., and it is a grand accompaniment when the congregation sings, and is just the instrument that ought to be used in all churches where the people all wish to have the privilege of bearing a part in the praise."

200 Organists and Pianists,

the most eminent of their profession in the country, have given written testimony to the superiority of these instruments over all others of their class. The Cabinet Organ is, in brief, commending itself to musicians and to the people everywhere. Its great power, in purity and sweetness of tone, and its scope of expression, added to its durability and complete construction, cannot fail to make it a universal favorite. Such is the degree of perfection to which these instruments have been brought, that it is alike suited to the purposes of churches, halls, schools, and private parlors, and is admirably adapted to both sacred and secular music, and it is believed that it will bear no unimportant part in education and establishing a popular musical taste wherever it goes.

The Subscribers are the exclusive wholesale Agents for the Mason & Hamlin Cabinet Organs for Western Pennsylvania, and furnish them at exactly the same price as charged at the Factory.

The subscribers are anxious to send to every person, whether intending to purchase an instrument or not, a copy of the Cabinet Organ Circular, which contains a great amount of very interesting information. Sent post-paid to any address.

The above described lands are well fenced except about two acres. Sixty acres are in a fine state of cultivation, and the balance is wood land. There is an excellent young orchard bearing fruit on the premises, consisting of about 160 apple trees, 120 peach trees and some cherry trees.

There are also three good springs of never-failing water, and a coal bank opened and in working condition.

Back Run passes through a portion of said lands, the north branch of Brady's Run, and there are about twenty acres along said run which is considered excellent oil territory. There are two oil wells now being put down within half a mile of said premises, and preparations are being made to put down four more in the immediate vicinity.

TERMS.—One-half of the purchase money in hand on the confirmation of the sale by the Court, and the remainder in two equal annual instalments, from that date, with interest from the same time, to be secured by bond and mortgage. SAMUEL MAGAW,

THE BEAVER ARGUS

MAY 16th, 1866.

LOCAL and MISCELLANEOUS.

☞ The Alliance Monitor says the population of Alliance, ascertained by a census just taken, is 3,257.

☞ The McKeesh Oil Company struck an unusually fine show of oil last week at a depth of 580 feet. The stock of this company is owned exclusively by citizens of this place. It is on the land owned by the Beaver County Oil Company.

Personal.—A. G. Henry, Esq., editor of the Kittanning Republican has been in town for the past few days. His appearance indicates that the climate of Armstrong county agrees with. Mr. Henry publishes an excellent Union paper, and we are glad to hear that it is in a prosperous condition.

☞ Our friends in Frankfort Springs and vicinity applied some time since to the Post-Office Department, through Hon. George V. Lawrence, for a daily mail from Burgettstown to Hookstown. We are pleased to learn he has succeeded in obtaining it for them. The increased service commenced on the 4th inst. There is now a daily mail from West Middleton, Washington county, via Burgettstown, Florence, Frankfort, Kendall, Hookstown, Georgetown to Smith's Ferry, Beaver county.

☞ We have been presented with three pieces of instrumental music, composed by Prof. E. Ambuhl, Principal of the Musical Department of the Beaver Seminary, and published by C. C. Mellor, of Pittsburg. The several pieces are entitled "Impromptu Polka," "Polka Tonic," and "Gondoline." We are not the best judges of music in the world, but have no doubt that, like everything of Prof. Ambuhl's composing, these pieces are not inferior to those of our best artists. Prof. Ambuhl has few superiors as a performer on the piano.

☞ There are now four producing wells on the territory owned by the Beaver County Oil Company, and nine others going down. If all strike, as we have no doubt they will, the company will be enabled to declare large dividends out of the royalty. We understand at least two more strikes are expected this week. There are now so many new strikes at Island Run that we cannot keep an account of the one-half, and outside of those immediately interested, a new strike is little heeded. It is gratifying to know that thus far all are more or less successful, and the increase of wells does not affect the flow of any.

Death from the Sting of a Fish.—Mr. John Myers, residing near New Oxford, Adams county, died on Wednesday of last week from lock-jaw, produced by a wound from the sting of a fish. It appears that some four or five weeks previous Mr. M. had purchased a lot of fish, and in handling them one of his fingers received a slight prick or wound from the fin of one of the fish. Although painful at the time, he did not pay much attention to the wound, thinking it was a mere trifle, but in a few days afterwards the wound became very painful, his hand and arm swelling fearfully, causing him the most intense agony. He suffered for several weeks in the greatest misery, when mortification set in and death came to his relief.

☞ The New York Tribune, in speaking of Mason & Hamlin Cabinet Organs, says:

"These instruments have been blown by wind of genuine success from Boston to San Francisco. That Messrs. Mason & Hamlin have succeeded in making a superior small instrument, from little bandbox-like things, to those which, though portable, and not larger than a piano, can make themselves felt in a church, is the universal opinion of the musical profession. They agree that no such mechanical works of the kind can be found in Europe. The tone is pure and full, and with an immense body for so small a provocative mechanical force. They stand rough traveling, bad usage, and will live in climates which will kill American missionaries."

See advertisement in another column.

Every Saturday.—This Weekly is, in our opinion, precisely what if claims to be,—a journal of choice reading selected from current literature. The editor has the range of all the English and Continental Reviews, Magazines, the first-class Weeklies, which press into their service the ablest, wisest, and wittiest writers of Europe. From this almost immense storehouse, he selects that which he judges best adapted to suit the taste and intelligence of the American people. The selections in the numbers already issued have embraced a wide variety of topics,—all of interest to cultivated minds, and nearly all of a character to be highly attractive to the majority of American readers. Each number is complete in itself.

Whoever wishes the freshest and choicest Foreign periodical literature, must take "Every Saturday." It is published by Ticknor & Fields, Boston.

☞ We were authorized some months since to send the Argus to an individual (we cannot say gentleman) residing in this county, as we were informed, and have no doubt at his request. We did so, and after some weeks received the following note with his name attached, which we publish verbatim et literatim. At the time we forwarded our paper we understood he was a Republican, but we subsequently learned he was in the employ of a copperhead Justice of the Peace, and was himself a copperhead. The note, we are informed, was written by the aforesaid Justice. It is too rich to be lost. We have only to say that we have no desire to send our paper to any such cattle. The place for them is in the ranks of the Democracy, as they would not be at home among decent or intelligent voters. Read what a Democratic Justice writes:

Aprile the 2ond 1856

Mr rutan frecevd a paper on last saterday at —— post ofice the beaver Argus beeing Nomber 18 this is the first i ever nowed and i want it stoped for i never sent forit and if you send it on your one risk for when isend for a dsmd wooly head iwill let you now and if ican find out the goddamd bitch or scoundrelwich that told you that i wonted you to send it come will bung his damd snoot sow stop it and save paper and truble tow

Terrible Accident—Mother and Child Killed.—We are again called upon to record a railroad accident by which an aged German lady and her daughter were instantly killed. It seems that about half past nine o'clock yesterday, when the New Brighton accommodation train had reached Glendale it met the Wellsville accommodation train of the Cleveland and Pittsburg road, coming east. At this point Mrs Maria Steifel, aged about fifty years, and her daughter, of the same name, aged five years, were seen walking on the track, having left their home a short distance below Glendale station for the purpose of taking passage on the cars to visit a sick relative in Allegheny City.—The engineer of the Wellsville accommodation train, as soon as he saw the woman and child on the track, "whistled down breaks." The little girl, instead of going to the side of the track, ran along it, followed by her mother, and before the speed of the train could be checked, the locomotive overtook and ran over them.—The little girl had both legs terribly crushed and lived but half an hour in an insensible state. The mother was horribly mangled and mutilated, and died instantly. There was a steep bank on either side of the track, which may account for their not getting off the track. Witnesses testified that they had ample time to save themselves, and that the accident was unavoidable. An inquest was held and a verdict in accordance with the facts rendered. The Steifel's lived in this city for a number of years, and then removed to Ohio, from whence they recently returned. A family of six children are left to mourn their loss.—Pitts. Gazette, 9th inst.

☞ The Harrisburg Telegraph says that we were in error in saying that the law relating to Eating Houses, &c., was so changed as to require the Court of Quarter Sessions to license; that the bill passed the House, but was lost in the Senate. We were informed that the general bill was lost, but that a special bill, embracing Beaver and one or two other counties, passed and became a law. At present we are unable to state correctly how the matter stands.

☞ We return our thanks to the Union Literary Society of Hookstown for the honor conferred in electing us Honorary Members of said Society, of which fact we have just been officially informed. May the Union Literary Society ever prosper and flourish, and the members thereof contribute largely to the diffusion of correct principles and the spread of useful knowledge. We are, gentlemen, glad to be recognized as Honorary Members of your Society.

Removed.—We would call attention to an advertisement in another column announcing the removal of D. Stewart's Brush Manufactory from 26 Fifth street to No. 120 Wood—Mr. S. has fitted up a handsome store, and the assortment is all that a purchaser can desire. The salesrooms, as well as the manufactory, are under his special supervision; and, being a man of great enterprise, and energy, we would invite our readers to visit him, and we are sure they will get an excellent article and a good bargain.

Accident.—Quite a serious accident occurred on Sunday last from the running off of a horse attached to a buggy, in Rochester, which resulted in serious injury to Henry Bence and wife of this place. It appears they were out riding when the horse took fright and ran off breaking the buggy to pieces, and threw Mr. Bence and lady both out, breaking several of his ribs and otherwise injuring him, and bruising Mrs. Bence, but we believe breaking no bones.

Soldiers League.—A meeting of the Soldiers of Washington county will be held at Washington on the 18th of this month, for the purpose of organizing a Soldiers' League, for the promotion of harmony and good will amongst themselves, and for the mutual benefit and best interests of the common country.

Worth Trying.—It is said that a small quantity of sassafras bark mixed with dried fruit will keep it free from worms for years. The remedy is easily obtained in many localities, and is well worth an experiment, and it will not injure the fruit in any manner, if it does not prevent the nuisance.

☞ The Rt. Rev. John Barrett Kerfoot, D.D., Bishop of the Diocese of Pittsburg, will administer the Rite of Confirmation, in Trinity Church Rochester, on Sunday morning next, 20th inst. The Rev. Jos. P. Taylor, A. M., rector of the Parish, and the Rev. John T. Protheroe, the assistant, will also aid in conducting the service.—The public are cordially invited to attend. Services commence at 10½, a.m

Geary's Position.—The position of Gen. Geary on the great issue is clear and emphatic. He declares that the Republic rescued by loyal blood and loyal sacrifices must be ruled by loyal men; that treason is a crime that must be made odious—must have an adequate penalty and cease to be known in our land save in its crimsoned history. It is the true position, and the loyal millions who saved the nation when treason was attacking its life are with him. So, too, are the men with him who opposed and at home kept down the Copperheads who were denying the power of the Government to preserve its existence.

The Federal troops having recently been withdrawn from Stanton and Augusta in Virginia, the loyal inhabitants of those towns have petitioned to have them sent back again, as indispensable to their security.

The Bill to Licence Eating Houses and Restaurants.—The Harrisburg Telegraph says that at the last session of the Legislature a bill was reported in, and passed the House of Representatives, providing that hereafter licenses to restaurants and eating houses shall not be granted by the county treasurer of any county, but such license, if granted, shall be issued from the court of quarter sessions of the several counties, on the same terms and under the same restrictions and regulations as are applied to inns and taverns. When this bill reached the Senate it was strenuously opposed by the interest involved and defeated.—We see, however, that several of our cotemporaries indulge the statement that the bill passed both Houses, was signed by the Governor and is now a law. But such is not the fact. The measure was defeated as we have stated, and we make this explanation that our cotemporaries may correct their own misstatements.

Ex-Governor Johnston's Appointment.—The Senate Finance Committee, in executive session of the Senate on Friday, reported back the nomination of Ex-Governor Johnston as collector of Internal Revenue, at Pittsburg, with the recommendation that he be not confirmed. It was laid aside for future action

The Commercial's special says: The President has signed the amended Habeas Corpus act. The act is intended to protect civil and military officers of the Government from malicious prosecution for acts committed during the civil war, in discharge of duty, or in obedience to orders

The body of Hon. Preston King, who committed suicide in November last, by drowning, at New York, was recovered on Monday. The remains are not much bloated, and are less decomposed than might have been expected, considering the fact that they were in the water just six months.

Hon. Amos W. Myers, of Clarion, is a Union candidate for Congress in the Twentieth Pennsylvania District.

"Use the Best!"

DR. CLOCK'S

EXCELSIOR HAIR RESTORER IS THE best ever offered to the public and the only one possessing all the merits claimed for it.—It restores gray hair to its original color, makes hair grow on bald heads when falling off from disease; removes Scruff, Dandruff, etc.; arrests its falling off or turning gray; cures sick headache and all diseases of the scalp; causes harsh, wiry hair to become soft, pliable and luxuriantly glossy. It is elegantly perfumed, and all that can be desired for a dressing. It contains no sugar of lead or other mineral so injurious to the head and hair, and of which most preparations now in use are composed, but is a purely vegetable compound. WE CHALLENGE THE WORLD to produce an instance where the Restorer has failed when used according to directions. Among the thousands who have used it we have yet to learn of one who is not perfectly satisfied with its resuls. Hair white as snow is with marvelous rapidity restored to all its pristine beauty by its use. It is not a dye, but by supplying the secretions of the capillary glands acts as a restorer. Mothers, whose children's hair is harsh, wiry, or thin and scant, will find by using the Restorer it will immediately improve and may be dressed in any desired form, thus laying the foundation for a good head of hair, so desirable in after life. The proprietor is aware of the many who have been disappointed by the high sounding pretense of the numerous preparations with which the market has been filled for a few years past, but such entire confidence does he place in the merits of his Restorer that he offers, in all cases, to refund the money if, after a thorough trial of two bottles, it fails to give perfect satisfaction. A single trial will convince the most skeptical of its merits. Put up in large bottles and sold by all druggists at $1 pr bottle.
